Double Exposure 21

A blackjack game in which both dealer cards are shown to the player (before) he plays his hand. Other house rules are usually changed, such as players losing pushes, and blackjacks are paid even money to restore the advantage the house loses by exposing the dealer's hole card.

Learn how you can incorporate an expert Blackjack Bustout Dealer presentation into your next Casino Night event.

Experience the thrill of playing blackjack against an expert card shark without the risk of losing any real money. You and your guests will participate in a face-to-face game against expert card cheat, Igor Lustig, who will eliminate the element of luck from the game of blackjack. At the end of the evening Igor will send a chill down your spine as he demonstrates the actual expert cheating techniques that he used throughout the evening. This will make you think twice before you decide to enter a real casino again.

♦ Double exposure 21

This is a variation where both dealer's cards are dealt face up. As attractive as it may sound at first glance there other changes that make this game unfavorable: the player will win all natural ties and lose all other ties; all naturals are paid at 1 to 1; surrender and insurance are not available; the player may double down only on a point count of 9, 10, or 11; the player may split only once.
